

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

* * *

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

ERIC J. PARKER,

Defendant.

Case No. 2:16-cr-00046-PAL-GMN

ORDER

(Mot. Sever – ECF No. 477)

Before the court is Defendant Eric J. Parker’s (“Parker”) Motion to Sever (ECF No. 477) which was referred to the undersigned pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(A) and LR IB 1-3. The court has considered the motion and the Government’s Response (ECF No. 516), the government’s Motion to Supplement Responses (ECF No. 971), and Parker’s Response (ECF No. 1046).

BACKGROUND

I. The Indictment

Defendant Parker and 18 co-defendants are charged in a Superseding Indictment (ECF No. 27) returned March 2, 2016. Parker is charged in 11 counts with:

- Count One – Conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 371. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred sometime between March of 2014 and March 2, 2016.
- Count Two – Conspiracy to impede or injure a federal officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 372. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred sometime between March of 2014 and March 2, 2016.
- Count Three – Use and carry of a firearm in relation to a crime of violence in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 924(c) and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred sometime between March of 2014 and March 2, 2016.
- Count Five – Assault on a federal officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 111(a)(1), (b) and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred on April 12, 2014.

- 1 • Count Six – Use and carry of a firearm in relation to a crime of violence in violation of 18
2 U.S.C. § 924(c) and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred on April 3 12, 2014.
- 4 • Count Eight – Threatening a federal law enforcement officer in violation of 18 U.S.C.
5 § 115(a)(1)(B) and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred on April 6 12, 2014.
- 7 • Count Nine – Use and carry of a firearm in relation to a crime of violence in violation of 8 18 U.S.C. § 924(c) and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred on 9 April 12, 2014.
- 10 • Count Twelve – Obstruction of the due administration of justice in violation of 18 U.S.C.
11 § 1503 and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred on April 12, 2014.
- 12 • Count Fourteen – Interference with interstate commerce by extortion in violation of 18 13 U.S.C. § 1951 and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly on April 12, 2014.
- 14 • Count Fifteen – Use and carry of a firearm in relation to a crime of violence in violation of 15 18 U.S.C. § 924(c) and § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred on 16 April 12, 2014.
- 17 • Count Sixteen – Interstate travel in aid of extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1952 and 18 § 2. This charge arises from conduct that allegedly occurred sometime between April 5, 19 2014 and April 12, 2016.

20 The Superseding Indictment (ECF No. 27) in this case arises out of a series of events
21 related to a Bureau of Land Management (“BLM”) impoundment of Cliven Bundy’s cattle 22 following a two-decade-long battle with the federal government. Beginning in 1993, Cliven 23 Bundy continued to graze cattle on land commonly referred to as the “Bunkerville Allotment” 24 without paying required grazing fees or obtaining required permits. The United States initiated 25 civil litigation against Cliven Bundy in 1998 in the United States District Court for the District of 26 Nevada. The court found that Cliven Bundy had engaged in unauthorized and unlawful grazing 27 of his livestock on property owned by the United States and administered by the Department of 28 the Interior through the BLM. The court permanently enjoined Cliven Bundy from grazing his livestock on the Allotment, ordered him to remove them, and authorized the BLM to impound any unauthorized cattle. Bundy did not remove his cattle or comply with the court’s order and injunction. The United States went back to court. Subsequent orders were entered in 1999 and 2013 by different judges in this district permanently enjoining Bundy from trespassing on the Allotment and land administered by the National Park Service (“NPS”) in the Lake Mead National

1 Recreation Area¹, ordering Bundy to remove his cattle, and explicitly authorizing the United States
2 to seize, remove, and impound any of Bundy's cattle for future trespasses, provided that written 3 notice was given to Bundy.

4 On February 17, 2014, the BLM entered into a contract with a civilian contractor in Utah
5 to round up and gather Bundy's trespass cattle. BLM developed an impoundment plan to establish 6 a base of operations on public lands near Bunkerville, Nevada, about 7 miles from the Bundy ranch 7 in an area commonly referred to as the Toquop Wash. On March 20, 2014, BLM also entered into 8 a contract with an auctioneer in Utah who was to sell impounded cattle at a public sale. Bundy 9 was formally notified that impoundment operations would take place on March 14, 2014. The 10 following day, Bundy allegedly threatened to interfere with the impoundment operation by stating 11 publicly that he was "ready to do battle" with the BLM, and would "do whatever it takes" to protect 12 "his property." The superseding indictment alleges that after being notified that BLM intended to 13 impound his cattle, Bundy began to threaten to interfere with the impoundment operation, and 14 made public statements he intended to organize people to come to Nevada in a "range war" with 15 BLM and would do whatever it took to protect his cattle and property.

16 The superseding indictment alleges that, beginning in March 2014, the 19 defendants 17 charged in this case planned, organized, conspired, led and/or participated as followers and 18 gunmen in a massive armed assault against federal law enforcement officers to threaten, intimidate, 19 and extort the officers into abandoning approximately 400 head of cattle owned by Cliven Bundy.
20 The removal and impoundment operation began on April 5, 2014. On April 12, 2014, defendants 21 and hundreds of recruited "followers" executed a plan to recover the cattle by force, threats, and 22 intimidation. Defendants and their followers demanded that officers leave and abandon the cattle 23 and threatened to use force if the officers did not do so. The superseding indictment alleges armed 24 gunmen took sniper positions behind concrete barriers and aimed their assault rifles at the officers.
25 Defendants and their followers outnumbered the officers by more than 4 to 1, and the potential 26

27
28 ¹ By 2012, Bundy's cattle had multiplied and he also began grazing his cattle on land administered by the NPS in the Lake Mead National Recreation Area without obtaining grazing permits or paying grazing fees.

1 firefight posed a threat to the lives of the officers, as well as unarmed bystanders which included
2 children. Thus, the officers were forced to leave and abandon the impounded cattle.

3 After the April 12, 2014 confrontation with federal officers, the superseding indictment 4 alleges that the leaders and organizers of the conspiracy organized armed security patrols and 5 check points in and around Cliven Bundy's Bunkerville ranch to deter and prevent any future law 6 enforcement actions against Bundy or his co-conspirators, and to protect Bundy's cattle from 7 future law enforcement actions.

8 II. Procedural History

9 Parker was initially arrested on March 3, 2016, in the District of Idaho on a Superseding
10 Indictment (ECF No. 27) returned March 2, 2016 and warrant issued in this district. All 19 11 defendants made their appearances in this case in this district between March 4, 2016, and April 12 15, 2016. At the initial appearance of each defendant, the government stated its position that this 13 was a complex case that would require special scheduling review. All 19 defendants are currently 14 joined for trial pursuant to the provisions of the Speedy Trial Act. All 19 defendants have been 15 detained pending trial.

16 In an Order (ECF No. 198) entered March 25, 2016, the court directed the parties to meet 17 and confer as required by LCR 16-1 to discuss whether this case should be designated as complex, 18 and, if so, to attempt to arrive at an agreed-upon complex scheduling order addressing five 19 specified topics for discussion. The order gave the parties until April 18, 2016, to file a stipulated 20 proposed complex case schedule if all parties were able to agree, or if they were not, to file a 21 proposed schedule with supporting points and authorities stating each party's position with respect 22 to whether or not the case should be designated as complex, a proposed schedule for discovery, 23 pretrial motions, and trial, and any exclusions of time deemed appropriate under 18 U.S.C. § 3161.

24 A Proposed Complex Case Schedule (ECF No. 270) was filed on April 18, 2016. In it, the 25 government and 13 of the 19 defendants agreed that the case should be designated as complex.
26 The 13 defendants who stipulated to the proposed schedule included: Cliven Bundy, Mel Bundy, 27 Dave Bundy, Blaine Cooper, Gerald Delemus, O. Scott Drexler, Richard Lovelien, Steven Stewart, 28 Todd Engel, Gregory Burleson, Joseph O'Shaughnessy, Micah McGuire and Jason Woods. Three

1 defendants, Ammon Bundy, Peter Santilli, and Brian Cavalier, indicated that they would “defer 2 the decision to agree or disagree, pending further consultation with counsel and/or have taken no
3 position as to the filing of this pleading.” Three defendants, Ryan Bundy, Eric Parker, and Ryan 4 Payne, disagreed that the case should be designated as a complex case “to the extent time is 5 excluded under the STA.”

6 The same 13 defendants who initially stipulated that the case should be designated as 7 complex, agreed that the May 2, 2016 trial date should be vacated, and that the trial in this matter 8 should be set on the first available trial track beginning “in or around February 2017.” Three 9 defendants, Ammon Bundy, Peter Santilli, and Brian Cavalier, “deferred the decision to agree or 10 disagree about a trial date pending further consultation with counsel, or have not taken a position.”

11 The 13 defendants who stipulated the case should be designated as complex and a trial date 12 set in February 2017, stipulated “that all time from the entry of Defendants’ pleas in this case until 13 the trial of this matter is excluded for purposes of the STA pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3161(h)(7)(A) 14 as the ends of justice outweigh the interest of the public and the defendants in a speedy trial.” 15 Ammon Bundy, Peter Santilli and Brian Cavalier “deferred the decision to agree or disagree about 16 the exclusion of time, pending further consultation with counsel, or have taken no position on the 17 matter.” Ryan Bundy stated he disagreed “to the extent any exclusion of time denies him the right 18 to a speedy trial under the STA.” Eric Parker stated he disagreed “with no further position stated.” 19 Ryan Payne stated he disagreed “with the exclusion of time to the extent it denies him the right to 20 a speedy trial under the STA.”

21 The court held a scheduling and case management conference on April 22, 2016, to 22 determine whether this case should be designated as complex. Eighteen of the nineteen defendants 23 appeared with their counsel. Defendant Ryan Bundy appeared pro se with standby counsel, Angela 24 Dows. At the scheduling and case management conference on April 22, 2016, many of the 25 defendants who had initially stipulated to the complex case schedule and a February 2017 trial 26 date, changed positions. The positions of each of the defendants were stated on the record at the 27 hearing and memorialized in the court’s Case Management Order (ECF No. 321) entered April 26, 28 2016. The court found the case was a complex case within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §

1 3161(h)(7)(B)(ii), and set the trial for February 6, 2017. The case management order made
2 findings concerning why this case was deemed complex within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. § 3 3161(h)(7)(B), and the court's findings on exclusion of time for purposes of the Speedy Trial Act.
4 The case management order also set deadlines for filing motions to sever, motions for filing pretrial
5 motions and notices required by Rule 12 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure², and LR
6 12(1)(b). No defendant filed objections to the determination that this case was complex, the court's 7 Speedy Trial Act tolling and exclusion findings, or any other provision of the court's case 8 management order.

9 III. The Parties' Positions

10 A. The Motion to Sever

11 Parker seeks a severance arguing he is a resident of Idaho. He and two of his friends, co-12 defendants O. Scott Drexler and Stephen Stewart, drove from Idaho to protest actions by the 13 government that they viewed as wrong such as setting up "First Amendment Zones" and using 14 force on protestors. Parker's own involvement in this case was simple. He was in Bunkerville for 15 less than 24 hours. While at the site, he was mainly on a bridge situated above the wash or basin 16 where the standoff took place 100 yards or so east of the second bridge and directly above where 17 most of the standoff took place. While the parties were waiting for the cattle to be released, 18 tensions mounted. Parker was still on the bridge with Stewart and Drexler. As the protestors 19 moved towards the government officials and contractors, announcements were made that officials 20 were authorized to "use gas" and "lethal force" if the crowd kept converging forward. A stranger 21 handed Parker binoculars and pointed out snipers on a bridge in the distance. At this point, Parker 22 laid down on his stomach between two jersey barriers holding his AR rifle in the general direction 23 of the government officials and contractors approximately 100 yards away. His friend, Drexler, is 24 also alleged to have taken a similar position about 20 yards away. Stewart was armed, but did not 25 hold his weapon and is alleged to have been a lookout or spotter for Parker and Drexler. After the 26 cattle were released and tension died down, Parker and his two friends left the area, packed their 27 belongings, and returned to Idaho.

28 ² All references to a "Rule" or the "Rules" refer to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.

1 Parker seeks a severance from the trial of all of his co-defendants except Drexler and 2 Stewart. He argues the three should be tried together given their roles and the evidence that the 3 government would proffer against them. A severance would protect Parker, Stewart and Drexler 4 against guilt by association with the Bundy co-defendants. Parker did not know any of the other 5 co-defendants until after the April 12, 2014 events. To this day, he is not personally aware of who 6 many of them are and only knows the roles some have played because he has been furnished with 7 discovery in this case, or has been incarcerated with his co-defendants. The superseding 8 indictment alleges that certain co-conspirators organized body guards, patrols, and checkpoints to 9 prevent and deter future law enforcement actions. However, he, Stewart and Drexler had nothing 10 to do with the post-standoff security detail, and all of this evidence would be completely irrelevant 11 and more prejudicial and probative against these three defendants.

12 B. The Government's Response

13 The government opposes the motion arguing the crimes charged in the superseding 14 indictment involve a continuing conspiracy to impede and interfere with federal law enforcement 15 officers. This conspiracy began in at least March 2014, and continued through March 2016, when 16 the superseding indictment was returned. The superseding indictment alleges that during the 17 course of the conspiracy, defendant Cliven Bundy led a criminal enterprise to prevent federal law 18 enforcement officers from taking actions to enforce federal court orders that required the removal 19 of his cattle that had been grazing on public lands unlawfully for more than 20 years. This 20 enterprise was conducted through threats of force and violence, actual force and violence, assault, 21 and extortion.

22 The superseding indictment alleges that Cliven Bundy began recruiting the members of the 23 conspiracy in March 2014, using social media to call for gunmen and others to come to 24 Bunkerville, Nevada, the site of the impoundment, to physically confront, impede and interfere 25 with law enforcement officers as they were executing their duties to enforce federal court orders.
26 Ultimately, over 400 of Bundy's followers converged on the site where the officers were 27 impounding cattle on April 12, 2014. The government claims that over 60 of Bundy's followers 28 were either carrying, using, or brandishing firearms, including assault rifles, as they converged on

1 the gate and blocked the entrance to the impoundment site which was guarded by approximately 2 40 law enforcement officers. The government also maintains that the conspiracy continued after 3 April 12, 2014, because conspirators took concerted action to protect Bundy's cattle from future
4 impoundment and to prevent law enforcement actions against Cliven Bundy.

5 Cliven Bundy, along with his sons Ammon Bundy and Ryan Bundy, and co-Defendants 6 Peter Santilli and Ryan Payne, are charged in all 16 counts of the indictment. Cliven Bundy, Ryan, 7 Ammon, Mel, and Dave Bundy are alleged to be leaders and organizers of the conspiracy along 8 with co-Defendants Ryan Payne and Peter Santilli. Defendants Blaine Cooper, Brian Cavalier, 9 Joseph O'Shaughnessy and Gerald Delemus are alleged to be mid-level leaders and organizers of 10 the conspiracy. The remaining defendants, Eric Parker, O. Scott Drexler, Steven Stewart, Richard 11 Lovelien, Todd Engel, Gregory Burleson, Micah McGuire and Jason Woods were gunmen.

12 The superseding indictment alleges that Cliven Bundy was the leader, organizer, and chief 13 beneficiary of the conspiracy who possessed ultimate authority over the scope, manner and means 14 of conspiratorial operations. He also received the economic benefits of the extortion plead in the 15 indictment.

16 The government points out that it made its initial disclosures to the defendants on May 6, 17 2016, pursuant to the court's Case Management Order (ECF No. 321). The initial disclosures 18 included the Rule 16 statements of the defendants and other Rule 16 information and materials.
19 The government is withholding disclosure of Jencks materials until 30 days before trial because of 20 serious concerns for witness safety and security.

21 The government maintains that all of the defendants were appropriately joined for trial 22 pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P. 8(b) and 14(a). These rules are designed to avoid multiple trials and 23 promote judicial economy and efficiency. Defendants charged together and properly joined under 24 Rule 8(b) are generally tried together. Joinder is "particularly appropriate" in a conspiracy case 25 where all of the co-defendants are members of a conspiracy. The concern for judicial efficiency 26 is less likely to be outweighed by possible prejudice to the defendants in a joint trial of a conspiracy 27 case because much of the evidence would be admissible against each defendant in separate trials.
28 Joint trials provide the jury with an ability to see the entire picture of the alleged crime, and enable

1 the jury to reach a more reliable conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants involved.
2 Joint trials also limit the burden of requiring witnesses or victims to testify on multiple occasions 3 in separate trials and avoid “randomly favoring the last-tried defendants who have the advantage 4 of knowing the prosecution’s case beforehand.”

5 The government cites United States Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit authority holding 6 that a party seeking severance must show unusual circumstances in which a joint trial would be 7 “manifestly prejudicial” to warrant severance. This is a high standard which can be met if a 8 defendant demonstrates that his specific trial rights are compromised, or where a jury would be 9 unable to reach a reliable verdict without severance. It requires a showing that a joint trial would 10 be so prejudicial that it would deprive the defendant of a fair trial. A showing that jointly charged 11 defendants have varying degrees of culpability or that there is an improved possibility of acquittal 12 in a separate trial is insufficient to warrant severance.

13 The government contends that Parker is charged as a gunman who was recruited to come 14 to the Bundy ranch by co-defendants for the purpose of participating in an armed assault against 15 federal law enforcement officers. The government characterizes his argument that the majority of 16 the evidence would not be admissible in a joint trial against Parker and co-defendants Drexler and 17 Stewart as “specious.” The government argues that Parker has failed to identify the specific 18 evidence he believes is inadmissible against him that may prejudicially spill over to him. Even if 19 it is true that he did not know any of his co-defendants until after April 12, 2014, his knowledge 20 of the identities of his co-conspirators is irrelevant to joinder. Because Parker does not show that 21 he withdrew from the conspiracy, the same is true with respect to whether he participated in patrols 22 and checkpoints after April 12, 2014. Parker is charged as a gunman in the conspiracy. Therefore, 23 all of the evidence concerning his participation in the conspiracy and the participation of others in 24 the conspiracy is admissible against him whether or not he knew his co-conspirators. The 25 superseding indictment does not charge any overt acts that are not legally attributable to Parker as 26 a member of the conspiracy, regardless of when he joined the conspiracy. Even if there is some 27 “modicum of evidence” not admissible against Parker which is admissible against co-defendants, 28

1 which the government disputes, Parker has not established that a limiting instruction is insufficient 2 to cure any alleged prejudice. The government therefore asks that the court deny Parker's motion.

3 C. The Government's Motion to Supplement Responses

4 The Government's Motion to "Supplement" (ECF No. 971) acknowledges that the 5 government filed oppositions to each of the defendants' severance motions, arguing that the nature 6 of the allegations and charges made this case appropriate for joinder and that defendants had not 7 shown a joint trial would manifestly prejudice them. Id. at 6. The governments' responses 8 objected to individual trials, and did not propose an alternative to a single 19-defendant trial.³ Id.
 9 The government states it took this position because, when it filed its oppositions to the motions to 10 sever, it was unclear whether all of the defendants would be available for the February 2017 trial 11 as a number of defendants were also charged in the District of Oregon and awaiting trial. The 12 charges against the defendants who were also charged in the District of Oregon have now been 13 resolved, and all of the remaining 17 defendants will be available for the trial set in February 2017.
 14 The government has concluded that there is little likelihood that any more defendants will resolve 15 their case short of trial. The government therefore seeks leave to submit a supplemental response 16 to defendants' severance motions and its own request and proposal for severance.

17 The government now argues the court should exercise its inherent authority to manage its 18 docket and order severance because a joint trial of all 17 remaining defendants would unreasonably 19 increase the amount of time it takes to try all defendants, result in greater delay, confusion and 20 difficulty in maintaining an orderly and efficient proceeding. It seeks to align defendants into 21 proposed groupings of three-tiers for three separate trials:

- 22 • Tier 1 – Leaders and Organizers: Defendants Cliven Bundy, Ryan Bundy, Ammon 23 Bundy, Peter Santilli, and Ryan Payne.
- 24 • Tier 2 – Mid-level Leaders and Organizers and Follower-Gunmen: Defendants Dave 25 Bundy, Mel Bundy, Joseph O'Shaughnessy, Brian Cavalier, Jason Woods and Micah 26 McGuire.

27
 28 ³ Two of the 19 defendants, Gerald A. DeLemus and Blaine Cooper, have now resolved their cases by entering guilty pleas.

- Tier 3 – Follower-Gunmen: Defendants Ricky Lovelien, Todd Engel, Gregory Burleson, Eric Parker, O. Scott Drexler, and Steven Stewart.

Citing United States v. Taylor-Prigge, 830 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 2016) and United States v. Mancuso, 130 F.R.D. 128, 130 (D. Nev. 1990), the United States argues that severance is justified where a joint trial would cause manifest prejudice, or irrespective of prejudice, interfere with the court's inherent authority to manage its docket, or both. The government continues to maintain that there would be "no material prejudice attached to the joinder of the defendants here because the charged offenses all arise from a common nucleus of operative fact, and because there is no serious risk of prejudicial 'spillover' of otherwise admissible evidence." However, the government now seeks severance under the second Mancuso factor to allow the district court to control its docket.

The government argues that a single 17-defendant jury trial, which none of the defendants initially requested, would unreasonably increase the time it takes to try all of the defendants, result in a greater risk of delay, confusion, and difficulty in maintaining an orderly and efficient proceeding. The government estimates that a 17-defendant trial would, under the best circumstances, likely take between 4 and 6 months to complete, and require the government to call between 60 and 75 witnesses. Cross-examination of each of these witnesses by 17 separate defense counsel would unreasonably extend the length of the trial. Additionally, a joint trial would likely result in delays based on scheduling difficulties and conflicts attendant to so large a number of defendants and their counsel. Under these circumstances, the court may exercise its inherent powers to fashion efficient, smaller trials from an otherwise unwieldy, mass, joint trial.

The government continues to maintain that 17 separate trials would also unreasonably increase the total time required to try all defendants. The government estimates that individual trials would take a minimum of 3 to 4 weeks each, requiring the government to call from 30 to 45 witnesses to present its case-in-chief for each of the 17 trials, and potentially 17 months to complete all 17 trials. More importantly to the government, separate trials will unreasonably subject victims to being "re-victimized time and again as they are forced to retell the violence and threats of death and bodily injury they faced on April 12, 2014." The government therefore

1 submits its 3-tier severance plan is an attempt to strike a reasonable balance between these two 2 otherwise unreasonable alternatives.

3 The government argues that its 3-tier proposal groups the defendants in a way that 4 “conforms conceptually to their roles in the conspiracy and aligns with the evidence the 5 government anticipates offering at trial.” The defendants in Tier 1 are the leaders and organizers 6 who were involved in most, or all of the critical events leading to the April 12, 2014 assault. This 7 includes the March 28, 2014 blocking of the BLM convoy; the April 2, 2014 threats and 8 interference with the Utah auction barn; the April 8, 9, and 10, 2014 calls to arms; the April 9, 9 2014 “ambush” of the BLM convoy; the April 9, 2014 threats and interference with the Utah 10 auction barn, the April 11, 2014 threat against the impoundment special agent in charge; and the 11 April 12, 2014 assault.

12 The same is not true of the Tier 3 defendants who are identified as follower-gunmen, whose 13 involvement in the conspiracy is restricted more to their actions during the assault on April 12, 14 2014. Similarly, the Tier 2 defendants are identified as mid-level leaders and organizers whose 15 leadership roles involve their “actions on the ground during the April 12, 2014 assault, and less by 16 their pre-assault activities.”

17 The government expects that at a trial of the Tier 1 defendants, it would offer more 18 evidence of the details of the broader conspiracy and the defendants’ leadership roles in the 19 conspiracy. While evidence of the broader conspiracy is equally admissible against Tier 2 and 3 20 defendants, in separate trials, the government would offer this evidence in summary, rather than 21 in detailed form, simply to provide context for the events of April 12, 2014.

22 The government indicates it is likely to offer more evidence regarding the details of 23 individual movements of Tier 2 and 3 defendants through the wash and over the bridges during 24 the assault to demonstrate their concert of action and intent. By contrast, a trial of the Tier 1 25 defendants would focus less on the individual movements of the gunmen and on-the-ground 26 leaders, and more on the mass movements of the followers against the BLM position. These 27 examples point out the efficiencies that would be gained through a tiered trial presentation of the 28 3 proposed groupings.

14 D. Parker's Response

23 DISCUSSION

25 A. Rule 8(a): Joinder

13

1 constituting parts of a common scheme or plan. Fed. R. Crim. P. 8(a); see also United States v.
 2 Prigge, 830 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 2016). Rule 8 has been broadly construed in favor of joinder.
 3 See, e.g., United States v. Lane, 474 U.S. 438, 449 (1986); United States v. Jawara, 474 F.3d 565, 4 572 (9th Cir. 2006). The public has a substantial interest in joint trials because they conserve 5 government funds, minimize inconvenience to witnesses and public authorities, and avoid delays 6 in bringing a defendant to trial. United States v. Washington, 887 F. Supp. 2d 1077, 1107 (D.
 7 Mont. 2012) (quoting United States v. Camacho, 528 F.2d 464, 470 (9th Cir. 1976)). Misjoinder 8 of charges under Rule 8(a) is a question of law reviewed de novo. Jawara, 474 F.3d at 572 (citing 9 United States v. Terry, 911 F.2d 272, 276 (9th Cir. 1990)).

10 Generally, a valid basis for joinder must be discernible from the face of the indictment.
 11 Jawara, 474 F.3d at 572–73 (citing United States v. VonWillie, 59 F.3d 922, 929 (9th Cir. 1995); 12 Terry, 911 F.2d at 276). Mere factual similarity between the events is not a sufficient basis for 13 joinder. United States v. Vasquez-Velasco, 15 F.3d 833, 843 (9th Cir. 1994) (interpreting Rule 14 8(b) governing joinder of two or more defendants in the same indictment). However, the term 15 “transaction” is interpreted flexibly, and determining whether a “series” exists depends on whether 16 there is a “logical relationship” between the transactions. Id. “A logical relationship is typically 17 shown by the existence of a common plan, scheme, or conspiracy.” Id. at 844 (internal citations 18 omitted). A logical relationship may also be shown if the common activity constitutes a substantial 19 portion of the proof of the joined charges. Id.

20 B. Rule 14: Severance

21 Rule 14 governs the severance of both defendants and charges. Id. at 845. Even where 22 joinder is proper under Rule 8(a), the court may order separate trials of counts or provide other 23 relief that justice requires if joinder “appears to prejudice a defendant or the government.” Fed.
 24 R. Crim. P. 14(a). The court’s power to order severance “rests within the broad discretion of the 25 District Court as an aspect of its inherent right and duty to manage its own calendar.” United 26 States v. Gay, 567 F.2d 916, 919 (9th Cir. 1978). The court’s denial of a motion to sever is 27 reviewed for abuse of discretion. Prigge, 830 F.3d at 1098.

1 The defendant seeking severance bears the burden of showing undue prejudice of such a 2 magnitude that, without severance, he will be denied a fair trial. See United States v. Jenkins, 633
3 F.3d 788, 807 (9th Cir. 2011). Prejudice may arise where: (a) the jury could confuse and cumulate 4 the evidence of one charge to another; (b) the defendant could be confounded in presenting his 5 defenses (i.e., where a defendant wishes to testify in his own defense on one count but not another); 6 and (c) the jury could erroneously conclude the defendant is guilty on one charge and therefore 7 convict him on another based on his criminal disposition. United States v. Johnson, 820 F.2d 1065, 8 1070 (9th Cir. 1987). However, if there is a risk of prejudice, the trial court can neutralize the risk 9 with appropriate jury instructions, and “juries are presumed to follow their instructions.” See, e.g., 10 Zafiro v. United States, 506 U.S. 534, 540 (1993); Vasquez-Velasco, 15 F.3d at 847 (collecting 11 cases regarding jury instructions concerning compartmentalizing evidence and spillover 12 prejudice); United States v. Patterson, 819 F.2d 1495, 1503 (9th Cir.1987) (severance is 13 unnecessary when the trial court carefully instructs the jury “because the prejudicial effects of the 14 evidence of co-defendants are neutralized”).

15 Rule 14 does not require severance even if prejudice is shown; rather, the rule leaves the 16 tailoring of the relief to be granted, if any, to the district court’s sound discretion. Zafiro, 506 U.S.
17 at 538–39. The Ninth Circuit has explained that Rule 14 sets a high standard for showing prejudice 18 “because some prejudice is inherent in any joinder of defendants, if only ‘some’ prejudice is all 19 that need be shown, few, if any, multiple defendant trials could be held.” United States v. Vaccaro, 20 816 F.2d 443, 448 (9th Cir. 1987), abrogated on other grounds by Huddleston v. United States, 21 485 U.S. 681 (1988). The test for determining abuse of discretion in denying severance under 22 Rule 14 is “whether a joint trial was so manifestly prejudicial as to require the trial judge to exercise 23 his discretion in but one way, by ordering a separate trial.” Jenkins, 633 F.3d at 807 (citing United 24 States v. Decoud, 456 F.3d 996, 1008 (9th Cir. 2006)).

25 Notably, the Ninth Circuit had acknowledged that a joint trial is “particularly appropriate” 26 when defendants are charged with conspiracy. Id. (citing Zafiro, 506 U.S. at 536–37). This is so 27 “ ‘because the concern for judicial efficiency is less likely to be outweighed by possible prejudice 28 to the defendants when much of the evidence would be admissible against each of them in separate

1 trials’.” United States v. Boyd, 78 F. Supp. 3d 1207, 1212 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (quoting United States
 2 v. Fernandez, 388 F.3d 1199, 1242 (9th Cir. 2004)).

3 C. The Bruton Rule

4 In Bruton v. United States, 391 U.S. 123 (1968), the Supreme Court held that a defendant’s 5 Sixth Amendment right to confront and cross-examine witnesses is violated when a facially 6 incriminating confession of a non-testifying co-Defendant is introduced at a joint trial, even if the 7 jury is instructed to consider the confession only against the co-defendant. To violate the 8 Confrontation Clause, the co-defendant’s confession must directly incriminate the objecting 9 defendant. Id. at 126. However, the Supreme Court later held that “the Confrontation Clause is 10 not violated by the admission of a non-testifying co-defendant’s confession with a proper limiting 11 instruction when . . . the confession is redacted to eliminate not only the defendant’s name, but any 12 reference to his or her existence.” Richardson v. Marsh, 481 U.S. 200, 211 (1987). In Richardson, 13 the Supreme Court declined to extend the Bruton doctrine to “confessions incriminating by 14 connection.”” Id. at 209.

15 A properly redacted confession of a co-defendant does not violate the Confrontation Clause 16 if the confession does not refer to the defendant. Mason v. Yarborough, 447 F.3d 693, 695–96 17 (9th Cir. 2006). However, the redacted confession may not reference the co-defendant by 18 implication, for example, by replacing a name with an obvious blank space or symbol or word 19 such as “deleted.” Gray v. Maryland, 523 U.S. 185, 196–97 (1998).

20 In United States v. Parks, 285 F.3d 1133 (9th Cir. 2002), the Ninth Circuit held that the 21 trial court erred in admitting an improperly redacted confession which included the term “they” in 22 various places from which the jury could infer the existence of a third accomplice. Parks and co-
 23 defendant Williams were tried and convicted of bank robbery committed by three individuals. Co-24 defendant Williams gave a statement to the FBI which was admitted in redacted form at trial.
 25 Williams confessed to the robbery and stated Parks was the individual who collected the money 26 inside the bank. Although all portions of the statement in which Williams made any reference to 27 Parks or the two of them acting together were redacted, two sentences contained the word “they,” 28 indicating at least two other individuals were involved other than Williams. The Ninth Circuit

1 found that the jury would naturally conclude that Parks was the name redacted from the confession.
 2 “The combination of an obviously redacted statement with the language implying the existence of 3 a third person reasonably could leave the jury to conclude that the unnamed third person must be 4 the co-defendant before them.” Id. at 1139. The court held that admission of Williams’ redacted
 5 statement was error. However, after an exhaustive review of the record it determined that the error 6 was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt because there was substantial evidence of Parks’ guilt.
 7 Id. at 1139–40.

8 D. Antagonistic Defenses

9 Antagonistic defenses, “or the desire of one defendant to exculpate himself by inculcating 10 a co-defendant,” is not sufficient to require severance. United States v. Throckmorton, 87 F.3d 11 1069, 1072 (9th Cir. 1996) (citing United States v. Sherlock, 962 F.2d 1349, 1363 (9th Cir. 1992)).
 12 A defendant will only be entitled to severance based on mutually antagonistic defenses if “the core 13 of the co-defendant’s defense is so irreconcilable with the core of his own defense that the 14 acceptance of the co-defendant’s theory by the jury precludes acquittal of the defendant.” United 15 States v. Cruz, 127 F.3d 791, 799 (9th Cir. 1997) (quoting Throckmorton, 87 F.3d at 1072); see 16 also United States v. Tootick, 952 F.2d 1078, 1081 (9th Cir. 1991) (mutually exclusive defenses 17 said to exist when acquittal of one co-defendant would necessarily call for the conviction of the 18 other); United States v. Hernandez, 952 F.2d 1110, 1116 (9th Cir. 1991) (to obtain severance on 19 basis of antagonistic defenses, defendant must show that acceptance of one party’s defense will 20 preclude acquittal of the other party). The district court may also “reduce any potential confusion 21 between the defendants by instructing the jury that it should evaluate the evidence against each 22 defendant separately and that the verdict as to one defendant should not control the verdicts of the 23 others.” Id. at 800 (citing Zafiro, 506 U.S. at 540–41).

24 E. Severance for Favorable Testimony from Co-Defendants

25 A defendant who moves for severance to obtain favorable testimony from a co-defendant 26 must show the following: (1) he would call the co-defendant at the severed trial; (2) that the co-27 defendant would in fact testify; and (3) that the testimony would be favorable to him. United 28 States v. Jenkins, 785 F.2d 1387, 1393–94 (9th Cir. 1986) (citing United States v. Seifert, 648 F.2d 557, 563 (9th Cir. 1980)); see also United States v. Mayo, 646 F.2d 369, 374 (9th Cir. 1981). The district court then must consider “the weight and credibility of the proposed testimony and the economy of severance.” United States v. Castro, 887 F.2d 988, 998 (9th Cir. 1989). It is insufficient to state that a co-defendant “likely” would offer exculpatory testimony at a separate trial. Id. Additionally, it is well settled that “a defendant has no absolute right to elicit testimony from any witness, co-defendant or not, whom he may desire.” Gay, 567 F.2d at 919; United States v. Roberts, 503 F.2d 598, 600 (9th Cir. 1974). Any witness may invoke his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination and refuse to testify. Gay, 567 F.2d at 919.

F. Severance for Judicial Economy

A number of circuit courts of appeal, including the Ninth Circuit, have recognized that the district court has broad discretion to organize the size of its cases in the interest of judicial economy and case management. See, e.g., United States v. Kennedy, 564 F.2d 1329, 1334 (9th Cir. 1997); United States v. Casamento, 887 F.2d 1141, 1151–53 (2nd Cir. 1989); United States v. Moya-Gomez, 860 F.2d 706, 754 (7th Cir. 1988). Many district courts have recognized the court’s inherent authority to manage its case load and to sever in the interest of efficient administration of justice and judicial economy. See, e.g., United States v. Mancuso, 130 F.R.D. 128 (D. Nev. 1990); United States v. Gallo, 668 F. Supp. 736, 754–58 (E.D.N.Y. 1987), aff’d 863 F.2d 185 (2nd Cir. 1988), cert. denied, 489 U.S. 1083 (1989).

In Mancuso, 130 F.R.D. 128, Judge Reed recognized the general rule that defendants jointly indicted should ordinarily be tried together, and that co-conspirators in a conspiracy case should ordinarily be tried together. Id. at 130–31. However, his decision thoughtfully reviewed and considered the difficulties of a joint trial in a complex multi-defendant case. The decision pointed out that a complex multi-defendant case is “fraught with problems.” Id. at 131. He recognized that a single trial of a complex multi-defendant case imposes enormous burdens on the defendants, defense counsel, prosecutors, jurors, the court, and the judge. Id. Dozens of people are required to be in court every day. Id. Therefore, the absence of any one person may bring the entire trial to a screeching halt. Id. Complex multi-defendant cases involve reconciling the individual calendars of the prosecutors and each defense attorney with the court’s docket. Id.

1 Attorneys carrying a full case load have conflicts with other trials, and the longer the case lingers, 2 the more pronounced these conflicts become. Id. Judge Reed noted that a lengthy trial of multiple 3 defendants creates a unique hardship on each party involved. Jurors spend months away from their 4 daily lives, defendants are required to endure months of pretrial incarceration before their case is 5 finally adjudicated, and often significant amounts of time-consuming evidence are presented 6 which are unrelated to a particular defendant. Id. Attorneys are unable to spend significant time 7 on their remaining cases. Id. The court is forced to expend an exorbitant amount of time on a 8 single case, and other litigants must “queue up for the remaining courtrooms.” Id. The result is a 9 strain on the court’s docket and unconscionable delays of all other cases. Id.

10 Mancuso also recognized the personal strain on the trial judge in a long complex case. The 11 trial court is required to make rulings as issues come up which often require frequent adjournments 12 necessitated by unavoidable problems associated with multiple jurors, multiple defendants, and 13 their counsel as well as the witnesses and courtroom personnel who are required to be present at 14 all times. Id.

15 II. Analysis & Decision

16 The court’s case management order set an early deadline for filing motions to sever 17 because, at the case management conference conducted on April 22, 2016, counsel for Dave Bundy 18 stated he would be filing a motion to sever on behalf of his client. An early deadline was set so 19 that the court could evaluate if there was some consensus among the defendants concerning 20 severance. There was not. In their motions to sever, the defendants argued that the deadline for 21 filing motions to sever was premature because voluminous discovery had been produced by the 22 government shortly before the deadline for filing the motions. Virtually all of the defendants’ 23 motions to sever indicated they needed time to review the discovery to provide more specific 24 support for their request to sever. Almost all of the defendants asked for leave to supplement their 25 motions to sever after an adequate time to review discovery. As a result, the court held off deciding 26 the motions to sever the defendants filed.

27 On November 13, 2016, the government filed what it called a “supplement” to its responses 28 to defendants’ motions to sever, and its own motion to sever the defendants into three tiers for

1 trial. See ECF No. 971. The government's supplement and motion to sever was filed shortly after 2 the acquittal of the defendants who were also charged in the Oregon prosecution. It is clear to the 3 court this is no coincidence. Clearly, the government expected a different result. Clearly, the 4 government believed that a different outcome of some or all of the Oregon defendants' case would 5 prompt non-trial dispositions in this case. The government's motion was not timely filed. Payne 6 and counsel for other co-defendants correctly point out that the case management order required 7 the government to comply with the same deadline for filing motions to sever as the defendants.
8 However, virtually all of the defendants stated they were unable to support their motions to sever 9 by the initial deadline because they had not had an adequate opportunity to review the discovery.
10 Virtually all of the defendants asked for leave to supplement their motions to sever after reviewing 11 the government's voluminous discovery. All of the defendants have now had more than six months 12 to review discovery in this case, yet none of the defendants have supplemented their motions with 13 any specific support for severance based on Bruton concerns, or antagonistic or mutually exclusive 14 defenses. None of the defendants have met their burden of establishing that they would call a co-15 defendant in a severed trial, that a co-defendant would in fact testify, and that co-defendant's 16 testimony would be favorable.

17 The defendants are also correct that the government has changed its position regarding 18 severance. In opposing the defendants' motions to sever, the government argued that all 19 19 defendants were appropriately joined for trial and had not shown that a joint trial would be 20 manifestly prejudicial. The government's responses to the various defense motions argued that 21 this was a conspiracy case, and therefore the paradigm case for a joint trial. The government's 22 responses also argued that the defendants had not met their burden of establishing that any Bruton
23 issues, mutually exclusive defenses, or antagonistic defenses precluded a joint trial. Similarly, the 24 government argued that none of the defendants had met their burden of establishing that any co-25 defendant would testify in a severed trial. The government now argues that joinder of all of the 26 defendants was and is still appropriate and has resulted in efficiently getting this case ready for 27 trial. However, the government now argues that a 17-defendant trial would be too unwieldy. The 28 government asks that the court sever the trial into three groups in the interests of judicial economy

1 and efficient case management. The three tiers suggested correspond to what the government 2 believes the individual defendants' roles in the offenses charged in the indictment were. The three 3 groups are: Tier 1 – Cliven Bundy, Ryan Bundy, Ammon Bundy, Peter Santilli, and Ryan Payne; 4 Tier 2 – Dave Bundy, Mel Bundy, Joseph O'Shaughnessy, Brian Cavalier, Jason Woods, and 5 Micah McGuire; and Tier 3 – Richard Lovelien, Todd Engel, Gregory Burleson, Eric Parker, O.
6 Scott Drexler, and Steven Stewart.

7 The defendants have also changed their positions with respect to severance. The majority 8 of the defendants filed motions to sever requesting individual trials. Ammon Bundy and Ryan 9 Bundy argued that all of the Bundy brothers should be tried together. Mel Bundy initially indicated 10 he was not willing to be tried with his other brothers. Now that the government is seeking a 11 severance of this case into three separate trials, the majority of the defendants now want a joint 12 trial. Because the court has already indicated that severance will be ordered, the majority of the 13 defendants want to be tried first. A number of defendants who had previously asked to be severed 14 and tried individually now take the position that being tried on February 6, 2017, outweighs their 15 desire to be severed. Those defendants are Eric Parker, Richard Lovelien, Steven Stewart, Joseph 16 O'Shaughnessy, Micah McGuire, and Jason Woods. Some of the defendants are amenable to 17 going to trial with any group of co-defendants as long as they are in the first group set for trial.

18 In light of the court's indication that the trial would be severed, Ammon and Ryan Bundy 19 requested in their supplements that they be moved to a later group for trial because they have 20 recently returned from defending themselves in Oregon. Brothers Mel Bundy and Dave Bundy 21 want to go to trial first.

22 Cliven Bundy initially asked the court to sever his case from the trial of all of his co-23 defendants. His response to the government's motion to supplement now states the opposite. He 24 now seeks a joint trial. His response to the government's proposal argues it is the responsibility 25 of the court to ensure a venue for a joint trial of all 17 defendants. He asks the court to prove it is 26 not logistically possible to try all 17 defendants in a joint trial. However, if the court is not going 27 to hold a joint trial, he asks that he be severed and tried last. During oral argument on December 28 9, 2016, counsel for Bundy stated that he was requesting to go last if any severance was ordered

1 because he expects the defendants will be acquitted and he did not want his co-defendants and 2 their families and loved ones to undergo the hardship of waiting for trial.

3 During oral argument on December 9, 2016, counsel for the government argued that the 4 government's proposal was the most logical, would result in judicial economy, and conserve 5 resources. The court inquired of counsel for the government why it would be fair to make the 6 defendants in its proposed Tier 3 wait the longest for trial when these were the individuals the 7 government regarded as least culpable. Counsel for the government responded that the sequence 8 of the trial suggested would, in counsel's view, be most logical and conserve resources because 9 trying the Tier 1 leaders and organizers first would give the court an overview of the entire case.
10 Additionally, trying the Tier 1 defendants first would likely resolve a number of legal issues that 11 could be applied to the defendants awaiting trial. The court inquired whether it made more sense 12 to try the Tier 3 defendants first as the evidence in that case would be narrower than the evidence 13 introduced in the trial of the Tier 1 and Tier 2 defendants. The government responded that it was 14 not "wed" to the sequence of the trials. However, government counsel believed trying the Tier 1 15 defendants first would be most efficient and conserve the most resources.

16 The court also inquired whether two trials, rather than three trials, would be more efficient.
17 The government responded that it would, of course, try the case in the manner in which the court 18 determined the case should be severed. However, the government believed that a joint trial of the 19 Tier 1 and Tier 2 defendants would be cumbersome and involve a large number of limiting 20 instructions that the jury might find confusing.

21 The court will order severance in the interests of judicial economy and efficient case 22 management. The court finds that three trials in the groupings proposed by the government is the 23 most logical and will result in the most efficient manner of trying the 17 defendants awaiting trial 24 in this case. However, the court disagrees with the government that it would be less fair to try the 25 least culpable defendants first. The court will order that the Tier 3 defendants be tried first. These 26 are the defendants the government contends are the least culpable of the 3 groups of defendants.
27 In the absence of any compelling reasons for trying Tier 1 or Tier 2 defendants earlier, it seems 28 more fair to try the Tier 3 defendants first. The trial of the Tier 3 defendants will likely be a shorter

1 trial than the trial of either the Tier 1 or Tier 2 defendants. These defendants are primarily involved
 2 with the events on April 12, 2014. They are not alleged to be involved in the broader overall 3 conspiracy, or events before or after April 12, 2014. Trial of the Tier 3 defendants will focus on 4 their individual positions and involvement in the events on April 12, 2014. Evidence of the 5 involvement and actions of those the government alleges are the leaders and organizers of the 6 conspiracy can be presented in more summary fashion in a trial of the Tier 3 defendants.

7 CONCLUSION

8 Having reviewed and considered all of the moving and responsive papers in connection 9 with the severance issue, the court agrees that the most logical, efficient, and manageable way to 10 try this case is to separate the defendants into three groups corresponding to their alleged roles in 11 the offenses charged in the superseding indictment.

12 IT IS ORDERED that:

- 13 1. The trial of the 17 defendants awaiting trial shall be severed into three groups for three 14 separate trials consisting of:
 - 15 a. Tier 1: Cliven Bundy, Ryan Bundy, Ammon Bundy, Peter Santilli, and Ryan 16 Payne;
 - 17 b. Tier 2: Dave Bundy, Mel Bundy, Joseph O'Shaughnessy, Brian Cavalier, Jason 18 Woods, and Micah McGuire; and
 - 19 c. Tier 3: Richard Lovelien, Todd Engel, Gregory Burleson, Eric Parker, O. Scott 20 Drexler, and Steven Stewart.
- 21 2. The Tier 3 defendants will proceed to trial February 6, 2017.
- 22 3. The Tier 1 defendants will proceed to trial 30 days after the conclusion of the trial of 23 the Tier 3 defendants.
- 24 4. The Tier 2 defendants will proceed to trial 30 days after the conclusion of the trial of 25 the Tier 1 defendants.
- 26 5. All pending severance motions, responses, replies, supplements and joinders are 27 terminated.

28 ///

DATED this 12th day of December, 2016.

24